HOMEWORLD CONSTRUCTION CORPORATION's business interests in construction and land development can be traced back to the early days of Homeworld Engineering. Founded on January 29, 1992, Homeworld Engineering began as a general contractor registered with the Philippine Contractors Accreditation Board (PCAB) under the license number 14725, classified as a Category B contractor by the Construction Industry Authority of the Philippines (CIAP) under the Department of Trade and Industry. Since then, the company has consistently demonstrated excellence in its field, expanding its reach and expertise to become a leading player in the industry.

In an effort to broaden its operations and increase its market appeal, the company underwent a name change on May 3, 2005, becoming HOMEWORLD CONSTRUCTION CORPORATION. This strategic move resulted in the infusion of new capital from investors who are renowned leaders in the aggregates industry, providing the necessary aggregates for the construction of Ilo-Ilo and Bacolod International Airports. To amplify its branding mileage, the company invested in state-of-the-art equipment capable of producing top-notch crushed aggregates, hot asphalt mix, concrete ready mixed, and heavy equipment rental.

HOMEWORLD CONSTRUCTION CORPORATION takes pride in achieving a Category AAA level by PCAB, reflecting its commitment to quality and excellence. As the industry and market evolve, the company remains firmly committed to upholding a culture of integrity, fostering collaboration and teamwork, driving innovation, forward-thinking, and always striving to deliver exceptional results to its clients.
